

Miguel Ángel Payano Jr.

B.1980

Based in Beijing, China, and New York City, US

Introduction

Miguel Angel Payano Jr. combines sculpture, painting, and collage to create disturbing imagery that recalls surrealism and the illusionistic portraiture of the 16th-century Milanese painter Giuseppe Arcimboldo as well as mid-millennium Singerie paintings. From his upbringing in New York to decades spent living and working in China, Payano's work is reflective of the way that the artist shifts and expands his identity as he goes, bending and combining his different worlds. His transcultural practice combines humour and the grotesque. The mouth is a characteristic element in Payano's works as he paints them onto the surface of peaches, creating his own image of a "single-celled human," as he terms it.
